AT UNCLE CHARLEY'S SATURDAY

Local Nite Club Offers Inducement to Pleasure Lovers—Blue Melody Band

If a gentleman wins the cash amount given will be $10.00, a lady $5.00 cash. Someone is going to capture one of the neat girls and it will possibly be you or someone close and dear. There are lots of possibilities of winning and the feature should prove attractive.

As usual splendid music will be provided for as Uncle Charlie is well known for. On Saturday Blue Melody Orchestra of Bay St. Louis will be featured and several novelties in the dance numbers will be introduced.

This being Thanksgiving Month, Uncle Charlie wishes to feature the spirit of the festivity and no effort will be spared towards accomplishing this desired end.

Patrons of Uncle Charlie's come not only from Bay-Waveland and the county but from along the Gulf Coast and New Orleans. It is the popular place. A rendezvous for ladies and gentlemen in the strictest sense of the term.

FLEAS AND FLIES TO BATTLE

On Thanksgiving Night in Annual Turkey Day Game—The Lineup

Football fans of Bay St. Louis will be treated to a football feast Thanksgiving Nite when the Fleas and Flies of St. Stanislaus clash in their 16th Annual Thanksgiving Day game.

New stars will shine. Perhaps their glimmer will be somewhat dim, but nevertheless fans will get a glimpse of their lustre. The teams, after a hotly contested election of captains, have started their secret practice. Rivalry is at its highest pitch and fighting spirit has left its mark on more than one of the contestants.

Ordinary football will be but part of the treat. Fake punts, spinners and reverses will play their part that night. The Fleas are using a balanced line with a semi-punt formation, while the Flies will employ the double wing back formation featuring an air plane spin.

The following are the Flies: John Slavich, Carlos Fagan, Lampton, W. Ranson, G. Woods, Green A. Woods, D. Peltier, Benvenuti, F. Kiefer, D. Ranson. Second team: Morvant, Laferty, Tomasich, Schmidt, Breewood, Helm, Martin, Piazza, Feltier, Colson, K. Hardie, Louque.

The Fleas are: Born, Elliott, Landry, Fitzpatrick, J. Arceneaux, Russell, Dugas, Bob, Rebstock, Murtagh, Zimmerman. Second team: McConnell, H. Kiefer, Simpson, Kingston, Benvenuti, Sandoz, E. Piazza, Ames, Au Perez, J. Perez, R. Gibbens. The small teams will play the first and third quarters, while the larger teams will play the second and last quarters.

Blanchard deserves special mention for her efforts in making this attractive poster.

The fifth grade won the prize for having the most mothers present. The tea table, for the reception following the program, was unusually attractive with an appropriate Thanksgiving cloth and pumpkin centerpiece, reminding of the autumn season.

The mothers in charge were Mrs. Albert Biehl, Mrs. Jimmy Jones, Mrs. Horace Kergosien, Mrs. Geo. Steele and Mrs. Sharp, assisted by Miss Loretta Smith.

AUTHOR REVIEWS PRIZE NOVEL OF CURRENT YEAR

Mrs. Margaret Flint Jacobs Tells of Her Book—Interesting Meeting Is Well Attended

Mrs. Margaret Flint Jacobs, author of "The Old Ashburn Place," winner of the $10,000 Pictorial Review Dood-Mead Prize, gave a talk in which she reviewed her book and told a few of the circumstances which preceded the completed book, on the afternoon of November 9, in the sun parlor of the Western Hotel.

"I never studied journalism," stated Mrs. Jacobs, "but when I was a girl I would make up stories while lying in bed at night and hoped that someday I would be able to write them well."

During the first part of her marriage life Mrs. Jacobs did nothing to further this ambition but devoted herself to her husband and six children; as the youngest child entered kindergarten, she once more had time to think about her writing seriously. Sending off for a correspondence course, buying a second-hand typewriter, she began work on what turned out to be "The Old Ashburn Place."

The first magazine to which she submitted her story was Scribner's. They returned it. This was not the only magazine to reject it, but after several attempts, Mrs. Jacobs entered the Pictorial Review contest for first novels. Winning this contest was a surprise to Mrs. Jacobs.

Mrs. Jacobs quoted her mother Hannah Ellis Leovitt Flint; as saying, "maybe some day you will be able to write, Peggy, if you ever have anything to say."

Before his death Mrs. Jacobs' father, Walter Flint, said to several other members of the family, "Peggy might be able to hit her stride as a writer yet."

These quotations represented the encouragement Mrs. Jacobs received from her parents.

The setting of the book was inspired by West Baldwin, a small town in Southwestern Maine, home of the Flints.

When Mrs. Jacobs visited West Baldwin this summer, she met many people from which characters were drawn for her book, and saw again some places which she described in her book.

After Mrs. Jacobs talk, Mrs. C. C. McDonald gave her view of the book as a reader.

"In the book, 'Old Ashburn Place,' I preferred Charlie, Pop, and Alvir and I did not think Marion was selfish," said Mrs. McDonald.

In her talk Mrs. McDonald quoted three outstanding critics. The Litteral Quill-November—This novel merits attention because it won a $10,000 prize, because it introduces a new and competent writing and because it is another chapter in the increasing long chronicle of the state of Maine.

The family success is due to the mother of the generation with which the book is mainly concerned.

Item-Tribune—The strength of this tale is in its evenness, warmth, and simplicity, and the author's ability to stick to the homely idiom of the region lifts the style from the commonplace.

Lewis Garnett, N. Y. Herald Tribune—The Old Ashburn Place is the best of the year's crop of prize winners. One could say more for it and still be restrained.

Both Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Jacobs were introduced by Mrs. Carl Marshall, president of the Library Board.

Plenty of Turkeys For the Holidays, With Prices Downward Trend

The Associated Press reports that turkey eaters were given cause for Thanksgiving this week in a government report that more of the birds are strutting around the nation's farms this fall than in any previous autumn.

Compared to beef steaks and pork chops, the agriculture department added, "Turkey prices probably will be less this year."

The drumstick and gizzard trade was warned, however, that the turkey supply may be short next year, because feed scarcity is expected to cause rapid chopping-block reduction of the army of 20,000,000 turkeys now abroad in the land.

"There'll be plenty of turkeys on the market this fall, but they'll be smaller and younger than usual, the department predicted.

The outlook for chickens, geese and ducks is similar to the turkey situation, the department reported. "Poultry marketings in the fall and early winter are expected to be greater than in any recent year except 1931," the department said. "This is because the feed shortage will cause much of the 1935 hatch, which was above the 1935, to be marketed in that period."

Chamber of Commerce report a gain of 7,000,000 jobs.

SPIRITED ELECTION FOR CAPT

Morvant to Head Fly Team: Kingston Flea Captain—Also Elect Alternates.

In one of the most exciting, noisiest, uproarious elections ever held, Dickie Morvant and Al Kingston, were elected captain of the Flies and Fleas respectively of St. Stanislaus college. As the ballots were cast and counted, excitement ran high—pandemonium ensued as Kingston took the lead and cinched first place. The room literally shook with the noise and racket as the counts showed 22 for Morvant and 22 for Martin.

A second election was held, and again, while Fleas and Flies waited for toll, the ballots were counted. But proceedings had to be stopped until order could be restored. After 15 minutes the count was completed, the results showed 22 for Martin and 22 for Morvant.

Amid deafening cheering and whistling, a coin was flipped to decide the winner and Morvant won the choice. The two captains then choose their alternates, Kingston taking Mark Born and Morvant taking Slavich.

PRESIDENT ORLEANS DIVISION SSC PARENTS' CLUB RE-ELECTED

Mrs. John Redmann Significantly Honored for Fifth Consecutive Time.

The New Orleans division of St. Stanislaus Parents' Association held its first meeting on Wednesday, October 21, at 2 p. m., in the Monteleone Hotel.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. John Redmann, president, after which Mrs. Gregory Slavich, secretary called the roll. Mrs. Renaud Moustier, treasurer then read her report. Election of officers was held, and the following ladies were unanimously elected:

Mrs. John W. H. Redmann, president.

Mrs. William J. Brysson, vice-president.

Mrs. Renaud Moustier, treasurer.

Mrs. Gregory Slavich, secretary.

Mrs. Clay Thomas acted as chairman of the nominating committee.

Mrs. Redmann welcomed the new members and gave a brief resume of the work accomplished by the association since its organization, impressing upon them the necessity of co-operation and team-work to insure another successful year.

Those present were: Mrs. John H. Redmann, Mrs. William Brysson, Mrs. Renaud Moustier, Mrs. Gregory Slavich, Mrs. John Sangassan, Mrs. Clay Thomas, Mrs. Cornelius Polman and Mrs. Joseph Skelly.

A tribute to the Mothers of ex-students who continue to take active part in the association's work.

The New Orleans division St. Stanislaus Parents' Association takes this opportunity of expressing their appreciation to Mrs. John W. H. Redmann for accepting the office of president of the club for the fifth consecutive term.

Mrs. Redmann, a charter member, who has served in the capacity of president since the club was organized still cherishes the same feeling for the college, even though her son, John graduated last year and St. Stanislaus holds a place in her heart that makes the work a pleasure to perform.

Thanks also are extended to Mrs. Renaud Moustier who has acted as treasurer for four years and accepted re-election. She, too, maintains an interest that prompts her to continue her activity even though her son Richard is no longer a student of the school.

To Mrs. Cornelius Polman who is the only other charter member of the organization besides Mrs. Redmann, we feel grateful. She is one of the most active members of the club notwithstanding the fact that her son, Cornelius is an ex-student.

These kind ladies deserve exceptional credit for their assistance, and the club, as well as the college feels indebted for their generosity.

ROTARY HAS ARMISTICE PROGRAM

Past Legion Post Commander Laurent Dickson Guest Speaker—Presentation Of Colors.

Although the day was one of rain and dreary atmosphere it did not dampen the ardor or patriotism of the regular weekly luncheon-meeting of Bay St. Louis Rotary Club on Armistice Day, at Hotel Weston.

A special program was presented. Legionnaire Laurent Dickson, past commander of the local Legion Post, Hancock County, was the guest speaker and delivered a splendid address. First painting a picture of an actual war scene in Northern Italy, near the Austrian line, that he had witnessed. A speaker of poise and verbed his address well registered.

Later he spoke for peace, saying that preparedness meant for peace. There would be a war in Europe at the present time, he said, if the major countries were not prepared for battle. He said each were afraid of the other for this very reason and it served to avoid another bloody conflict of the like we wish to never see again. His objective was peace and well he did present the message and put it over. Preparedness meant for peace, he said.

The program was under the auspices of the local legion. Presentation of colors by the Boy Scouts was impressive, Boy Scout Emile J. Gex, Jr., and Roy Baxter delivering the prescribed talk for such occasion.

And, again, closing the program, Mr. Charles A. Breath, Sr., sounded taps. The attendance, members and guests, was one of the largest meetings yet held by Rotary under its new lease. And its patriotic program was one of the best yet.

After the flag was presented, Mildred Cagle led the Pledge of Allegiance. Poems in honor of this day were delivered by Carrie Lynn Nolan and Frances Speer. After taps were sung and accompanied by Mr. Charlie Breath on the cornet, Mrs. Jacobs gave a short talk on this subject.

During the week of October 25th to 31st, the Girl Scouts observed National Girl Scout Week, with the leadership of Mrs. J. B. Goldman and assistant, Miss Regina Blaize. On Sunday Mr. Allison gave a talk on Scouts and their work. Monday was home-making day; the girls cleaned their scout house. Handicraft Day was Tuesday, the girls then made an exhibit of a Girl Scout camp and put it on display in Mauffray's store window. Wednesday was thrift day, all scouts paid their back dues. THE LECHES AND WHITES. NEIGHBORS.

THE Leches and the Whites are typical neighbors. They live in adjoining States. Richard heads the Leches and Hugh is the pater familias of the Whites. One lives in Louisiana, the other in Mississippi, each is governor of their own respective bailiwicks. Like good neighbors, and as neighbors of that kind should be, they are friendly to the superlative degree. Congenial and cordial in their relations and abiding citizens they live right. That is why they are good neighbors.

Last week the Leches went over to visit the Whites. It was a neighborly visit. They spent the week-end together and were accompanied by members of their immediate folk circle.

Together they journeyed from the Mississippi Capitol to the classic city of Oxford, where some of the State's finest institutions of learning are located. They visited in holiday spirit. That is, they attended the great modern outdoor festival in Athenian style. Football, the classic outdoor entertainment of today, engaged their attention and happily were they seated side by side and with eagerness and mien of grace witnessed the gladiators of the gridiron in battle royal.

However, Mississippi did not accede to Louisiana the honor of victory in contest. For Mississippi beat the dickens out of Louisiana! Just like neighbors do. Sublimely typical.

The Leches and Whites are still good neighbors and as such we expect another neighborly visit. Perhaps next time the Whites will journey over to the Pelican State and visit the Leches.

PREPARING FOR CHRISTMAS TRADE

NEW ORLEANS stores plan for a big holiday trade and it is evident merchants are going after it and get all there is to be had by enterprise and solicitation. Of course, newspaper advertising will play an integral part of acquiring this important and lucrative trade, however, since a preponderant proportion of the business will come from this outlying section—Mississippi particularly—it might be said at the expense of our merchants.

New Orleans retail business, has, of late years, made constant inroads to the Mississippi Gulf Coast trade until today the Canal street stores are practically brought to our very doors, with daily delivery. This holiday season will prove no exception. It is probable trade will be heavier and the harvest of dollars will yield handsome profits to the merchants who are sufficiently keen and enterprising to be go-getters.

As an indication of early preparation store hours are already announced. Here is the published schedule: Beginning Monday, December 14, shopping hours from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. and from Saturday, December 19 thru Wednesday, December 23, the hours will be from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. On Christmas Eve the stores will be open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Newspaper advertising and other kind of advertising will flood the Gulf Coast and adjacent territory.

We congratulate New Orleans store and business fraternity on their keen perception so well manifested for more and better business and for their great enterprise.

POT CALLING THE KETTLE BLACK

AN unsigned communication to the Echo finds no space in the columns of this newspaper because the writer (from New Orleans) failed to sign his name thereby failing to reveal his identity. No one who might write an article should be ashamed to sign his name, even though not necessary for publication.

This occurs in the communication: Recently you took occasion in the editorial columns of your newspaper to call attention to the painting and general renovation of Canal street building. * * * Your article indicated you were inclined to disparage Canal street because it had been so long neglected * * * You were inclined to poke fun at antiquated New Orleans * * * Well, Mr. Editor, you had better look at your own yard in Bay St. Louis. Recently I was in Bay St. Louis for part of the summer and standing on the sidewalk of your very own building the sight I beheld of a row of unpainted and dilapidated shacks called business houses, was the abominable picture your beach side of Front street presented * * *

This is sort of the pot calling the kettle black. If we remember well the article in question was one of commendation and congratulation and not of unkind criticism. Until the recent clean-up campaign Canal street did represent a dilapidated front. But today that picture has changed. Buildings are resplendent with new fronts of paint and other surface mixtures. It is a striking transition. If our business front is shabby, as our correspondent infers, and he might be right, now is a good time to follow the example of New Orleans. We never object to constructive criticism. It invariably has good effect. And as to offending New Orleans well—that is out of the question.

GOVERNMENT SETTING GOOD EXAMPLE

CONSIDERABLE repair and renovation of improved reality is in progress over the city of Bay St. Louis. We notice the bulk of this work is executed under government auspices. Such are dwelling houses lost to former owners for reason of failure to pay the monthly stipend, specially understood and tacitly agreed, when the federal home project claimed the property in default of the owner to meet his obligation. The government originally took over this property and salvaged it for the owner from banks and other organized lenders of money ready to foreclose on long overdue paper. Just where there is room to criticize the forces of the government is not apparent to say the least. An obligation or contract with the government is no different than one with individuals or private sources.

Our government is paternal. As such it sought, through the wisdom intent of the New Deal to save every man and woman, whose home was in jeopardy, from the cruel fate of foreclosure and subsequent eviction.

It takes two to make an agreement. And that number to either break or keep it. In some quarters our government is severely criticized for foreclosing and selling out the home-owner. But other loan agencies in private would do similarly. The government prevented that from happening. It intervened at a critical time and refinanced the delinquent borrower loaned him money at a lower rate of interest possible to be had from private agency, and gave him three years grace before collection of principal. But we note many have fallen down on the small monthly interest payments. They became delinquent to a point beyond endurance. They seemed grateful at first for the rescue. But gratitude cooled and turned into indifference, we are told, and over the country our government was compelled to foreclose. It had no alternative. The trouble is not only the inability but the lack of willingness to pay. Too many divert the spending of their money to trivial and transitory things rather to the sterner obligations which insure for us peace, permanence and satisfaction.

Now that federal ownership of so many dwellings in Bay St. Louis is assumed by force of circumstance, we note the government displays sound wisdom in rehabilitating its property before offering for rent or sale; putting it in proper shape rather than own decaying and dilapidated structures. This sets a good example to those who would successfully own and keep their property. To repair, paint and maintain means for better and lasting value.

We have too many dilapidated and weather-beaten structures that cry to heaven; that blight adjacent values and are disintegrating factors. The government will own none of the kind. It sets good example. It practices economy in saving and conserving. Note the houses over town that are being re-roofed, repaired, repainted, renovated and regenerated.

FIRE PREVENTION GOOD BUSINESS.

IF you've ever suffered from destruction of property by fire, you'll know that nothing can fully repay you.

A fire insurance policy will rebuild a house. But it won't bring back the memories and the hundreds of irreplaceable articles that most of us gather through the years—articles with little intrinsic value. Nothing can. There are many things that dollars can't buy.

Also, an insurance policy may replace a burned factory. But it can't pay for lost work, destroyed opportunities, depleted purchasing power. When workmen's incomes stop, the whole community feels the ill effects. It may be necessary for them to subsist on charity or relief—at the expense of everyone. Storekeepers suffer, property-owners lose rent, savings are taken from banks. And so it goes.

When property is consumed, it no longer pays taxes—and the taxes paid by all other property must be increased to make up the deficiency.

Cases are on record where a fire has destroyed a town's principal industry—and the result was that community progress came immediately to an end and stultification set in.

Every wise home-owner and business-owner carries insurance—but if he is really wise, he will realize that his policy, no matter how complete, can never completely pay for the results of a fire. He will realize that prevention is better than cure—and that systematic fire prevention, carried on by every individual as well as by the authorities, is good business that keeps money in all our pockets.

FOUR VITAL QUESTIONS.

THE future of the railroad industry, said J. J. Pelley, President of the Association of American Railroads, hinges upon the answers to four basic questions:

1. Will railroad service continue to be essential to this country?
2. Are the railroads improving their services and cutting their unit costs?
3. Have the railroads, with a normal volume of business, the inherent efficiency to operate on a profitable basis?
4. Will they receive equal treatment under our public transportation policies?

Answering the first question, it is obvious that the railroads, in spite of the growth of other carriers, are still the principal medium for quickly and certainly moving all manner of goods, under all conditions, to and from all points of the nation. Other carriers supplement railroad service—but none supplant it.

Their record gives an affirmative answer to the second question. Year after year, the railroads have cut cost of operation, improved service, and modernized equipment. Fifteen years ago, on the average, the railroad cost of moving one ton of freight one thousand miles was $10.78. In 1935, the average cost was $6.63—a drop of 39 per cent.

The figures likewise say yes to the third question. Many statistics could be cited—here is one striking fact: An increase of 16.7 per cent in railroad gross revenues during the first eight months of 1936 as compared with 1935, was translated into an increase of 30 per cent in net revenues, before payment of taxes and rents.

As for the last question—that is up to the government, which is simply the voice of the people. The railroads are not equitably treated

ADDRESS DELIVERED AT RECENT ROTARY MEET ON WINTER TOURIST TRADE

For Mississippi Gulf Coast—Mr. Walter Reed, Manager Miramar, Presents Interesting Facts and Figures—Is Guest Speaker of Local Club.

Manager Walter Reed, executive manager Hotel Miramar, Pass Christian, was the guest speaker Bay St. Louis Rotary on Wednesday of last week. The title of his address was "Winter Tourist Trade," which proved an interesting and constructive address. Mr. Reed's address is reported here in part and follows:

In every town a handful of thinking men set its policies and direct its activities. This small handful of thinking men can usually be found in Rotary and other civic clubs.

The prime object of Rotary is to foster the ideal of service. The founders of Rotary evidently made a distinction between the performance of the service itself, and the contemplation of the ideal of service. Their original intention was not that their members should be an active group taking upon themselves the performance of services that should be performed by the Chamber of Commerce, the board of aldermen, school board, and other civic agencies. In fact, they prescribed against this, choosing to consider Rotary an inspirational group, rather than an active one.

But so closely are our ideals related to our performances, that the two almost go hand in hand. Fully convinced of the desirability of a service, or its necessity, the ideal is quickly translated into action.

This is particularly true in small towns like Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian. Here the group of thinkers and the men of action are the same persons, and the civic service conceived in the deliberations of Rotary is usually quickly put into action by the same men who conceived it. But, according to the rules of Rotary, these men must in such cases act as individuals, in the community activities.

In Pass Christian we have no active Chamber of Commerce or other independent group of male volunteer workers. Garden Club and PTA developed largely in Rotary and put into effect by Rotarians, acting as individuals, however. We have sponsored the Boy Scout movement, our members are most prominently identified with the Boy Scouts as leaders. Jim Terrell and Frank Wittman, Jr., have been most active in this work. We have sponsored the School Children's play ground, and our members to a large extent supplied the materials, labor, and planning necessary to get the play-ground established. We have reorganized the Yacht Club, our members being prominently identified with the movement.

Commodore Knott and Secretary Spence are both Rotarians. Some misguided individual wanted to nominate me for commodore, but I explained that though as a hotel man I had been in charge of the vessels for many years, it was the wrong kind of vessels.

Our Chamber of Commerce is dead, and I believe if life is to be put into the corpse it will be done by Rotarians, probably by sponsoring a Young Men's Business Club or in some other way putting matters into younger and more enthusiastic hands. When a body is a corpse, there is little use making further plans for it.

I have an idea that the situation in Bay St. Louis is much the same as that in Pass Christian. I do not refer particularly to the Chamber of Commerce—you may have a live one—but I refer to the fact that behind most of your activities for civic betterment will stand Rotarians, since Rotary with its high ideals of service, its Fellowship, and its intellectual stimulation will naturally attract to its membership the leading spirits of the community. In this group here today are the progressive citizens in whose hands lies the future of Bay St. Louis.

I have been asked to talk to you about Winter Tourist Trade. I have been given to understand that it is your plan to develop this Winter Tourist Trade for Bay St. Louis.

Rotary can perform no higher service for Bay St. Louis, than to analyze the possibilities of the town, and sponsor civic activities looking toward the possibilities of the town, and toward the supplying of the town's needs. Accommodation for winter tourists is one of the most important of these needs.

Every town needs an income from sources outside of its own citizenry. Citizens cannot forever live parasitically on each other, buying from each other and selling to each other without new life-blood from outside. The town which has no commercial, industrial or agricultural background cannot progress. And the backgrounds must be such as will bring in new supplies, new commodities, new people, new money, from outside.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast has no industrial or agricultural background, but it is ideally situated for developing business in seafoods, for shipping, and for a tourist trade. For tourists it is the most wonderful resort country in the world. Its temperate climate, its pure salt-washed air, its evergreen shore line, and its opportunities and facilities for outdoor recreation, make it the most desirable location in the world for the tourist and vacationist.

The same conditions that have made life such a problem to establish hotels, have furnished new and splendid opportunities for those who have been ready to see them and quick to grasp them. Bay St. Louis has today the opportunity of a generation to line up with progress and prepare for the accommodation of those who would bring tourist dollars.

Eighty-five percent of the traveling public travel by automobile. They patronize hotels, tourist camps, boarding houses, restaurants, gasoline stations, movies, golf courses, fishing camps. They spend their money wherever you supply them a place to spend it. Even those who travel in trailers have to buy gasoline and hot dog sandwiches. They patronize the auto repair shop, the theater, the night club, the beer parlor, the drug store, sometimes the barber. Bay St. Louis should join the Coast and become a part of it.

Data on Tourist Business on the Coast.

There are 18 hotels with 2000 rooms, accommodations for 2500 guests at $4.00 per day—$10,000.00. Stores, cottages, boarding houses, clubs, etc.

It is your business, you men of Bay St. Louis, to see that the tourist has a chance to spend his money in your town. You must build him hotels, camps, boarding houses, and supply parking space for his trailer. You must give him a golf course, or provide a road to one. You must provide boats and fishing tackle and places for his entertainment. Sell him your town. Try to make him like it enough to want to stay down South on the Mississippi Gulf Coast where two twelve dollar seersucker suits will last all year, where there are no coal bills, where rents are low, and where food can be caught with a hook, or a cartridge traded for a meal.

If you seriously wish to develop a tourist business in this town, you can select no better time for getting things under way. Remember the old saying that Opportunity never knocks twice and ponder over the ancient lines.

The moving finger writes and having writ
Moves on. Nor all your piety nor wit
Can call it back to cancel half a line
Nor all your tears wash out one word of it."

From the tourist it will get, it is getting, new tourist dollars, and it is getting prospective new citizens to build up its population. Population, like other things, cannot stand still. A town must grow or it must decline.

Let us look at the tourist dollar for a moment and consider what happens to it.

The Tourist Dollar.

How it is spent by the hotel—Labor 31-1-3, insurance taxes and maintenance 20; food 26-1-3; Labor 31-1-3; light, heat and power 7; miscellaneous 15-2-3 per cent.

The whole dollar eventually stays in the town except for a very small part that goes to wholesale supply houses, and these merchants patronize the town, sending traveling men to its hotels, its gas stations, its places of amusement, etc.

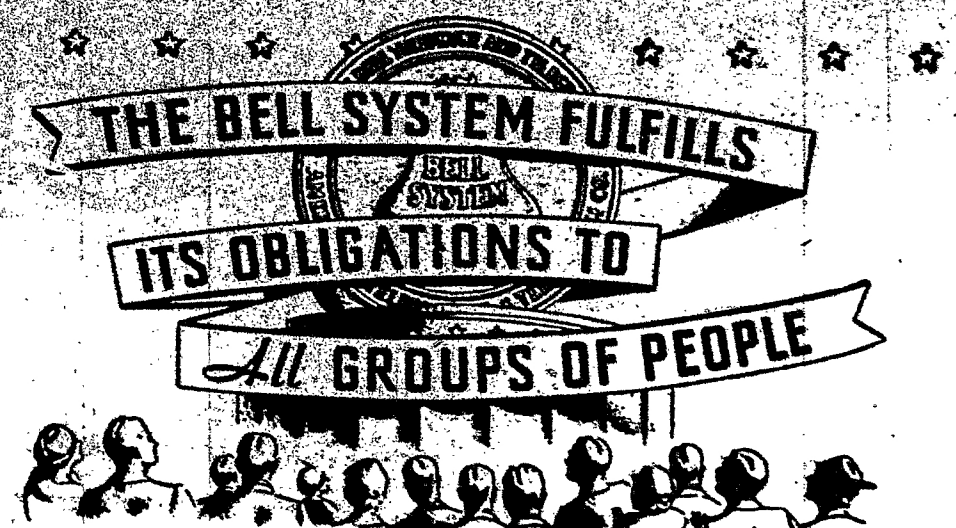

When you say tourist you don't mean only those who patronize hotels and use railroad transportation. That has gone out with bustles.

The automobile has revolutionized travel and has changed the customs, habits, and habit of the people. It has made the people travel-minded to such an extent that new facilities for their accommodation must constantly be provided, in new places.

Modern gypsying, sired by Ford and Dodge, has given birth throughout the country to a litter of tourist camps, roadside restaurants, gasoline stations, trailer parks, garages and other facilities for the accommodation of the traveling public.

The hotels and the railroads do not get the lion's share of this new and fast growing trade. For eight years both the railroads and the hotels have been fighting with their backs to the wall. They have been too slow to see the changes of the times; and to adapt themselves to new conditions, and their enormous investment in old-fashioned facilities and accommodations has been a deterrent influence. They have been slow because of the heavy cost of discarding the old and putting in the new things.

Red Cross reports record year in drive for highway safety.

Millions of times, every day, events occur which are small or great in the lives of individuals or the nation—and in which some phase of the telephone industry plays its part.

Maybe Mrs. Jones is ordering that loaf of bread delivered. Someone is frantically summoning a doctor. An American salesman is selling an order to a client across the ocean. A stockholder is opening an envelope containing the dividend on his investment in the telephone business. A telephone man is taking an order for service with pride in himself and the service he has sold. The foreign minister of one great nation is speaking with the foreign secretary of another world power.

These voice-to-voice contacts between human beings, separated by a few blocks or by the spans of oceans and continents, are possible today because the Bell System from the beginning has recognized and accepted its definite responsibility to all groups of people.

There is an obligation to telephone employees, whose noted loyalty would not exist if it were not deserved. There is an obligation to users of the service, and the United States has over half the world's telephones because good service at a reasonable cost is the rule. There is an obligation to the people who have invested their savings in the Bell System, and their confidence has been justified. There is an obligation to the people of the nation as an organized whole, expressed in the payment of taxes, and in this the Bell System has carried its share. There is an obligation to the future of telephony, and the Bell Laboratories have been a conspicuous success in meeting this duty to the future communication needs of this nation and the world.

All of these obligations have been summed up in the guiding policy of the Bell System, "the most service, and the best, at the lowest possible cost."

WINTER VISITORS (Biloxi News)

BILLOXI is now entering the season of winter. It is the time of the year when we have the semi-annual migrations of birds and men from the Northern to the summer climes. Many of our Northern friends come through here. Many of them stop to remain through the cold winter. These are welcome as our tourists and extend our hospitality to them. Unfortunately, along with the tourists and birds, we have a certain class of transients who drift through, becoming a burden to the people and making themselves generally annoying. These are the ne'er-do-wells of America.

Since many places do not tolerate this class of people in their midst, they are forced under various guises to assume the roles of peddlers or seekers of temporary employment. Such is their life. The latter are not as bad as the former. It is the drifting peddler who is most obnoxious and annoying.

In the past few days and weeks many of these peddlers have taken stands in the business district, not infrequently in front of stores, where they offer to sell merchandise of various kinds, which they either shoplifted a store further down the street or purchased and expect to sell at a profit, playing on sympathy. Some have been so bold as to take stands almost in the doorsteps of busy street stores. These peddlers are public nuisances and drive legitimate business from the doors of the merchants.

It is not fair to the storekeeper or the public in general to have to contend with this sort. They have no place in Biloxi and steps should be taken to keep them out of town.

FOOLING THEMSELVES. (Jackson News)

Probably they meant well, even if deluded and deceived by bootleggers and rum-runners, but the seven counties in Mississippi that voted last Tuesday to outlaw the legalized sale of beer were merely fooling themselves. Also, they were sowing a wind that will eventually force them to reap a whirlwind.

A terse presentation of the subject is made in the following form the pen of William Neal, editor of the Carrollton Conservative—a newspaper that has always lived up to its name:

Voters in several counties in the state Tuesday voted to abolish legal sale of beer in those counties. It is a fact beyond successful contradiction, that abolishing legal sale of the beverage does not do away with its sale. In their zealous efforts to prohibit the legal sale of beer, ardent prohibitionists confer a marked favor on their most bitter enemy—the bootlegger. Beer can be bought freely in those counties where its legal sale is outlawed. About the only difference that exists is that the state loses the revenue, and the state loses the revenue, and the persons buying and selling the beverage must slink secretly while engaged in the transaction.

Don't get me wrong. I don't drink beer. Don't like the nasty stuff. Never have and never will. Yet I do recognize the fact that under present laws its sale cannot be abolished in any county or community where there are some citizens who desire to drink it. As long as people want to drink it, there will be people who will sell it.

Some people acting in the mass or as individuals, never learn anything, save in the better school of experience. The counties that voted out beer last Tuesday will soon be wetter than the Atlantic Ocean with the very meaneast makes of red liquor.

LEGEND OF BAYOU LACOMBE. (Means Squeezing.)

Walohaha, an Indian Chieftain brave Ruled long by Bayou still and deep; He reigned in peace by forest and by wave, The love and joy of life to keep.

He hated war with all its crime and fear, And courted peace beneath the trees; He held that life was sacred and but dear, Enjoying all its mysteries.

So long he roamed the forest green and wild, His tribe in peace with all the world, But fever spread poison on forest child, And its defiance at him hurled.

One day the Chieftain saw a horrid snake, Swallow a toad before his eyes; His arrow then the woods did rudely shake Killing the snake in swift surprise.

The toad released, in joy and gratitude, Asked him what wish could be fulfilled? It said to squeeze the herbs and roots so rude, And for the fevers to make a pill.

So thus he cured the tribe from fevers' flame, With medicine simple and quaint; Forever blest the tribe the Chieftain's name, And long he ruled without complaint.

ELABORATELY CONCEIVED, STAR-STUDDED TRIUMPH MARKS MILESTONE IN HISTORY OF TALKING SCREEN, 'THE GREAT ZIEGFELD'

Tremendous Musical Production Unfolds Stirring and Dramatic Fictional Romance of Showman Who Glorified American Girl in a Sweeping Cavalcade Of Scenes of Breath-taking Beauty and Splendor

At last, the perfect entertainment picture has been achieved! It is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's musical extravaganza, "The Great Ziegfeld," at the A. & G. Theater.

It is a picture that possesses all, and even more, than its advance notices have claimed for it. This Sunday and Monday at the A. & G. Theater. Due to length of picture the first show Sunday will start at 3 o'clock and Monday at 6 o'clock.

This giant musical suggested by the life of the world's greatest showman, the late Florenz Ziegfeld, can be termed The Greatest Show on Earth. Not alone is it crammed with drama that tugs at your heart strings, but it overflows with comedy, music and beautiful girls.

First, there is the star combination of William Powell as Ziegfeld, Myrna Loy as Billie Burke, and Louise Rainer as Anna Held, and right there let us predict for this vivacious Viennese star a future as great as Greta Garbo's. Within two American productions she has leaped to the top as the most sensational star of the screen in the past ten years.

Sharing honors with the three stars is a veritable army of first-rate entertainers—Fannie Brice, queen of mimicry, singing the song that made her greater than she ever was, "My Man"; Harriet Hootor, America's own famous ballerina in the most spectacular musical number possibly ever filmed; Virginia Bruce, former Ziegfeld beauty, in another musical number, "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody," that challenges description.

Ray Bolger, spectacular dancer of the Broadway stage in another dazzling number, "Ten."

Beckham these stellar entertainers, "The Great Ziegfeld," has Frank Morgan as Ziegfeld's friendly enemy, Nat Pendleton as the great Sandow, strongest man in the world, Reginald Owen as Ziggy's business manager.

Not only does this amazing film unfold the life of Ziegfeld, but it presents a cross-section of the American theatrical world for the past quarter of a century.

The settings alone, designed by Cedric Gibbons, are unsurpassed in film history. They begin with the World's Fair of 1893 and include gorgeous theatrical settings of the many theatres that served as Ziegfeld's glamorous world.

In no picture to date have so many beautiful girls been assembled as was done for "The Great Ziegfeld." A Ziegfeld would have glorified them, so have they been glorified in the film.

The direction is superb, with Robert Z. Leonard reaping the laurels for the dramatic sequences and Seymour Felix for the dance and musical spectacles.

"The Great Ziegfeld" adds another triumph to Hunt Stromberg's long list of successes and to him goes a big hand for his courage in producing a musical picture on such a stupendous scale and making every foot of it entertainment in the highest degree.

TIGERS DEFEAT
WILDCATS

Bay High Defeats Kiln 12-6—Both Teams Display Remarkable Offense.

The scrappy Kiln Wildcats bowed to defeat at the hands of the Bay High Tigers, Friday November 6th, at the S. S. C. Stadium to the tune of 12-6.

Both teams displayed remarkable offense, but their defense appeared to be a bit off form. In the first quarter there was no scoring as the teams appeared evenly matched. However, in the second quarter, W. Rhodes, Tiger HB, intercepted a pass on his own 30 yard stripe and behind good interference he marched down the field for the first tally. The Tigers attempted to kick for the extra point but the ball fell short. The second tally for the Tigers was pushed over in the third quarter. Bay High had the ball on their own 18 yard line, the ball was given to C. Smith who immediately lateraled to W. Rhodes who carried the ball around left end for the second and last tally for the Tigers.

They attempted through the line for extra point but failed. The sole tally for the Wildcats was brought about in the last quarter. C. Smith, Tiger HB, dropped back to pass but being rushed so, he threw blindly of which a Kiln man intercepted to march for a touchdown. The Wildcats attempted to plunge the line but failed.

Statistics: Scoring touchdowns: Bay High, W. Rhodes; 2; Kiln, Curet 1. First downs: Bay Hi 6; Kiln 7. Passes: Bay High, attempted 7 and completed 2; Kiln Hi attempted 7, and completed 4. Penalties: Bay Hi, 70 yards; Kiln 25 yards.

JAMES G. GEARY HAS GIANT CAMPHOR TREE
OVER FIFTY YEARS OLD

Was Planted on Beach and St. Charles Street Residence by Late Congressman Lagan.

Passing along St. Charles street, near Beach Boulevard on the premises of Mr. James G. Geary, one may see growing in all its vigor and beauty a camphor tree that for its size possibly has no equal. It covers space of 75 feet in circumference and its foliage is of the sturdy and luxuriant kind, resembling in type of growth somewhat to the oak tree.

According to Mr. Geary's records it was planted fifty years ago by the former owner of the place, Congressman Mat D. Lagan, representative from Louisiana's district, this place the family summer home for many years.

It was while Mr. Lagan was Congressman he had the department of agriculture ship this tree to Bay St. Louis. It was planted and ever since has grown to remarkable extent. It certainly is "a thing of joy and beauty forever."

There is another in New Orleans about the same age, but not near as large. This is a remarkable tree and worthy of visiting. Mr. Geary is justly proud of it and when one visits and sees the size and beauty he or she will agree with the owner in his justified pride.

The camphor tree is, according to popular belief, a native of Japan. But authorities give China as its native home of origin. However, it is now cultivated in warm countries. It does very well in this immediate zone of the South. Camphor is collected from it by steaming the chips and subliming the product so obtained. Camphor tree (Cinnamomum camphora) is a large evergreen lauraceous tree, symmetrically shaped and is ingratiating to the eye to behold.

Mr. Geary owns one of the attractive beach residences on the Gulf Coast. The dwelling is of a type reminiscent of other days surrounded by spacious grounds and its location makes it one of the valuable pieces of beach Coast property. The camphor tree is an outstanding feature of "Villa by the Sea."

New Orleans Whitney
National Bank to Go On The Air Friday Nights.

It is quite interesting to note the enterprise of the N. O. Whitney National Bank, which will go on the air this Friday evening, WWL, 9 o'clock, with a national hook-up and continue every Friday evening thereafter. The main part of the program will consist of selections by the justly famous Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski and Eugene Ormandy. W. M. Kiplinger of Washington, D. C., the famous reporter, and Walter B. Pitkin, the humorous author of "Life Begins at Forty," will conduct the forum this week and Mr. Stokowski will explain the musical motif of the series.

Bay St. Louis is intimately acquainted with the Whitney Bank as a New Orleans institution and one of the outstanding of the South and will take special interest in tuning in this Friday night—at 9 o'clock, WWL.

Religious Ceremony
And Observance of All Saints' Day, DeLisle.

At the 8 o'clock mass there was quite a large attendance.

The funeral of Mr. Jerome Cuevas took place at DeLisle at 11:00 o'clock a. m., with quite a very large crowd of friends. Rev. Father Clarence Weber, S. V. D., who said mass at Pineville church, recited the prayer for the dead at the home of the deceased.

At 1:30 p. m. Father Sorin blessed the graves and at 2 o'clock Rev. Father Reinlet, S. V. D., gave benediction of the Blessed Sacrament after which he addressed the congregation in a very appropriate and elaborate talk which went deeply to the hearts of his hearers.

The day after on all Souls Day many came to approach the Holy Table at the three masses which were celebrated on that morning by the pastor Rev. R. J. Sorin.

MRS. JOHN N. STEWART
HOSTESS TO N. O. GUESTS
AT "COUNTRY LUNCHEON."

TO Bay St. Louis event this season claimed wider attention by New Orleans devotees of the social life than the lovely luncheon given Tuesday noon, by Mrs. John N. Stewart at the local Seagull resort on the beach, conducted by Mrs. Annette Elmer, manager-hostess.

Some fifty guests came out from the big city for this fall event and for the occasion the spacious dining hall was decorated with a profusion of chrysanthemums, tastily placed here and there in artistic abandon.

Striking combination and fetching effect, with the predominating color scheme of red and white.

Seated in front of the spacious and inviting fire place, typical of the country and reminiscent of the long ago and comfort, guests were served with cocktails and tempting hors d'oeuvres in varied recipes. Following this feature a 'country luncheon' was served.

The guests later in the afternoon realized time had sped all too swiftly. The event had proven a memorable one.

Mrs. Stewart was the charming hostess of the afternoon. She had surrounded herself by a coterie of charming friends whose zest and enthusiasm had contributed largely to the life and success of the occasion.

Mrs. Annette Elmer, assisting, was also another motivating center of the charming group, and, assisting, to her inimitable manner of doing is attributed in large measure much of the success of the Seagull's afternoon's entertainment.

The guests motored back to New Orleans later in the afternoon. Mrs. Stewart left the next morning for Asheville, N. C., where she will spend a period of indefinite duration visiting.

Informal Card Party and Supper for Mrs. Ella Maybin on Birthday.

Close friends of Mrs. Ella Maybin, who resides with her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Seal, North Beach Boulevard, assembled at the Seal residence Friday evening and celebrated her natal anniversary. Two tables of bridge in contest sped the evening hours and at midnight a supper was served in the dining room, a supper in keeping with the Thanksgiving month. The affair was thoroughly informal and only a few intimate friends of Mrs. Maybin present. The affair was one of marked delight during the entire evening.

Mrs. Maybin recently returned from New Orleans and is warmly welcomed back home again. Her sisters, Mrs. Seal and Mrs. John H. Weston added considerably to the delight of the evening by their presence.

Housewarming Party Proves Delightful to Friends of Couple.

A card playing group of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Toulouse assembled at their recently-renovated home in Main street Saturday night and enjoyed a housewarming party. Card playing until a late hour proved an all engrossing and supper was served at a late hour. Mr. and Mrs. Toulouse recently renovated the entire interior of their lovely home which lent a charming setting to the affair, and on this occasion of a house warming dispensed lavish hospitality to a particular group who frequently assemble at different homes from time to time.

Newspaper Worker and Golf Player is Honored with Birthday Party.

Mr. L. S. Elliott and a coterie of friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Moreau Monday evening on the occasion of his birthday. The auspicious occasion was observed in a manner that meant for an evening not soon to be forgotten. Keno-bridge was the diversion of the evening and its fascination engrossed the attention of the guests until a late hour.

Following the evening at cards the guests were later ushered into the dining room where an informal supper was served at a decorated table of pink and white colors, while cut chrysanthemums were set about the place.

The honoree of the evening was surprised before the guests left the table by a presentation of a large wicker serving tray on which had been piled remembrances that each of those present had previously carried in. These gifts were all in testimony of Mr. Elliott's popularity.

An ardent golf player a table center cake, aside from the regulation birthday cake, carrying three candles, was novel in the extreme and appropriate. The cake with its large top surface served as a gold green, the latter represented by shredded coconut, dyed green, and upon which were a golf player and a caddy carrying the bag and clubs.

A goal flag carried the inscription, "Happy Birthday." The cake and creation represented the skill and artistry of a well known local lady, a friend of the house. For originality it was decidedly fetching.

State Sales Tax
Remains in Force,
Despite Elections

Mansel Hill, district supervisor of the State Tax Commission, with Gulfport as his headquarters, has issued notice that, although the voters voted against the sales tax law in the State last Tuesday, the law was still in force and effect. He warned that the vote failed to effect the validity of the sales tax law, since the State Supreme Court had upheld the constitutionality of the law.

The vote, as he explained it, was simply to remove all doubt as to the constitutionality of the law. The vote of the people, had the amendment passed, would merely have had the legislature make the law a part of the Constitution.

The vote had nothing to do whatever with the present law. It was emphasized that the merchants must continue to collect the sales tax as they did in the past.
